

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image forming apparatus that includes an application for performing processes on image formation and an control service for performing system side

5 processes according to a function call from the application is provided, in which the image forming apparatus includes a wrapping part for converting a function called by the application, and performing a function call to the control service by using the

10 converted function.